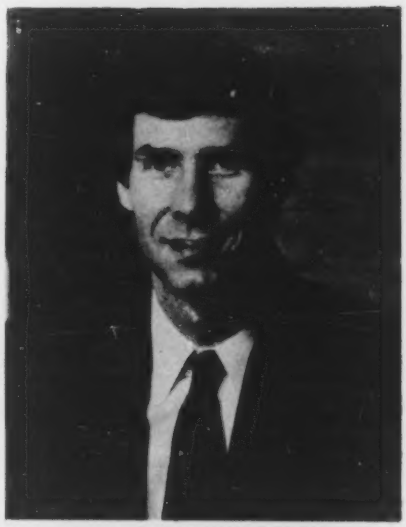
A Message from the Director



Richard P. Seiter was appointed director of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction in January 1983 by Governor Richard F. Celeste.

A native of New Bloomington, Ohio in Marion County, Seiter earned bachelor, master and doctorate degrees in public administration and criminal justice at the Ohio State University.

Between 1976 and 1983, he held a number of positions with the Federal Bureau of Prisons including superintendent of the National Academy for Corrections in Boulder, Colorado.

Dear Ohioan,

The mission of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction is to manage institutional and community activities related to convicted adult felons. We do this through two avenues; management of offenders in correctional institutions and through community supervision programs such as parole, probation and community-based residential centers.

Community protection and security are the department's primary responsibilities. Security is maintained by a diligent, well-trained, professional staff and through the use of sophisticated, state-of-the-art technology. These two factors combine to maintain our reputation of having one of the best escape-prevention records in the country.

Our inmate programs are centered on providing safe and humane living conditions. Educational and work-related programs offer all inmates opportunities to improve their chances of making a successful return to society. Daily needs are provided through complete medical care, a balanced diet and recreational opportunities. We are also proud that we operate a quality prison system at a cost effective rate.

It is the department's hope that we can continue to meet the concerns of public safety by carrying out the sentences of Ohio courts and by encouraging and training inmates to become productive, law-abiding citizens. All of the department's employees are committed to these goals and we pledge to do our part to make Ohio a safe and just place to live.

Richard P. Seiter

Richard P. Seiter, Director

Department Administration

The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction was established July 12, 1972 through the 109th General Assembly's passage of Amended House Bill 494. For over 100 years, Ohio's prison system had been administered as a branch of the state's mental institutions. The elevation to a separate, cabinet-level department became necessary because of the the dramatic increase in the number of felons being sentenced to serve time in prison.

Rehablitation and Correction employs about 7,000 persons throughout the state and is responsible for administration and operation of both the institutional and community phases of Ohio's adult correctional system.

The mission of the department is to provide community protection and public safety through the the operation of safe, secure and humane facilities that offer inmates rehabilitative opportunities.

The department is headed by a Director who is appointed by the Governor.

Major functions and responsibilities are shared by three Central Office administrators who report to the director.

The Executive Assistant to the Director is responsible for the executive branch. Program areas include Public Information, Legal Services, the office of Chief Inspector and legislative matters.

The Deputy Director for Administration is responsible for fiscal, personnel and record keeping matters through seven divisions and bureaus: Planning and Information Systems; Business Administration; the bureau of Personnel; Labor Relations; Equal Employment Opportunity; Ohio Penal Industries; and Activation. Program areas include food service, staff training and research.

The Deputy Director for Correctional Programs is responsible for the overall operation of correctional facilities and community supervision programs. The duties are administered through three divisions: Institutions; Institution Programs; and Parole and Community Services. Ohio's 20 adult correctional institutions have separate administrative staffs headed by a superintendent who reports to the Deputy Director. Institution Programs handles inmate classification, security, education, recreation, medical, social work, psychological and religious services. The division of Parole and Community Services supervises the Adult Parole Authority, the Ohio Parole Board, adult probation, community corrections, halfway houses and jail inspections.

Because of the continued growth in the state prison system, plans are being made to divide administrative duties into North and South regions. The change is expected to take place in mid 1988.

Correctional Institutions

At the end of 1987, the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction was operating 17 adult correctional institutions. They are a mix of the old and new facilities . Five of the prisons were opened during the year.

Allen Correctional Institution. Located in Lima adjacent to LCI. The 500-bed, medium-security institution opened in 1987 at a cost of $28 million.

Chillicothe Correctional Institute. Near Chillicothe in Ross County. A former Federal Reformatory which the state of Ohio took over in 1966. The medium-security institution consists of over 50 buildings on a 72- acre compound with a 1,500 acre farm. It's designed to hold approximately 1,500 inmates.

Correctional Reception Center. Central reception area for male inmates. The 900-bed facility opened in 1987 at a cost of $40 million. The Department of Mental Health also staffs a psychological services unit for inmates suffering from emotional problems.

Dayton Correctional Institution. On the west side of Dayton adjacent the city workhouse. The 500-bed, medium-security prison was the first of state's new institutions to open in February 1987.

Hocking Correctional Facility. Located in Nelsonville. HCF is a former state tuberculosis hospital that was converted into a 300-bed, medium/minimum security prison in 1983. Most of the state's elderly male inmates are housed at Hocking.

Lebanon Correctional Institution. Built in 1960 on 40 acres in Warren County. LECI is classified close-security with a design capacity of about 1,200.

Lima Correctional Institution. In Allen County in northwestern Ohio. It was built in the early 1900s as a mental institution for the criminally insane. LCI was converted to a 1,200-bed, medium-security prison in 1984.

London Correctional Institution. Built in 1925 as a prison farm operated by the Ohio Penitentiary. The 3,000-acre farm operation remains in operation at the 1,500-bed medium-security institution in Madison County.

Madison Correctional Institution. Across state Route 56 from LOCI. MACI consists of twin 500-bed compounds. One side is classified minimum security, the other is classified medium. The institution opened in 1987 and cost $35 million to build.

Marion Correctional Institution. Opened in 1956 on 60 acres with an adjacent 925-acre farm in Marion County. Currently MCI is classified close security with a capacity of 1,250.

Ohio Reformatory for Women. The state's only correctional institution for adult female offenders. Located on 260 acres near Marysville in Union County, ORW has a capacity of about 900 and houses all security levels.

Ohio State Reformatory. Opened in 1896 on a 600-acre site in Richland County. OSR is Ohio's oldest state prison currently in operation. It is scheduled to be closed when prisons under construction in northern Ohio are completed.

Orient Correctional Institution. The medium-security prison in Pickaway County was formerly a state institution for the mentally retarded. It replaced the closed Columbus Correctional Facility (Ohio Penitentiary) in 1984. OCI has a design capacity of 1,200.

Pickaway Correctional Institution. PCI was created in 1984 to provide training and job-seeking skills to inmates who were about to be released from incarceration. The six-week-long pre-release program is being transferred to regional centers and PCI will become a medium-security institution. It's located adjacent to OCI and has a design capacity of 1,500.

Ross Correctional Institution. Located across state Route 104 from CCI, Ross is a 1,250 bed medium/minimum security institution built at a cost of $60 million. RCI was the second of the state's new prisons to open in 1987.

Southeastern Correctional Institution. Formerly the Fairfield School for Boys youth facility. It was converted to a medium-security adult correctional institution in 1982. Located near Lancaster in southeastern Ohio, SCI has a design capacity of 1,100.

Southern Ohio Correctional Facility. Opened in Lucasville in Scioto County in 1972. SOCF is classified maximum security and has a design capacity of 1,550.

Prison Construction

In 1982, the Ohio General Assembly authorized the construction of 14 state prisons at a cost of about $550 million. Five of the institutions were opened in 1987 (see previous page). The remaining projects and their estimated completion dates are listed below.

Northeast Pre-release Center. Located near downtown Cleveland. The 350-bed facility is scheduled to be fully operational by mid 1988 at a cost of $14 million.

Franklin Pre-release Center. Located just south of downtown Columbus. Scheduled to open in the fall of 1988, the 250-bed center cost $7 million.

Warren Correctional Institution. Located in Lebanon adjacent LECI. WCI is a 750-bed, close/minimum security institution. It's scheduled to open in the fall of 1988 at a cost of $44 million.

Grafton Correctional Institution. In Lorain County at the site of the Grafton Honor Camp. GCI is scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1988. The 500-bed, medium-security institution cost $30 million.

Lorain Correctional Institution. Also on the site of the Grafton Honor Camp. LORCI is scheduled to open in early 1989. Classified close security, it has a capacity of 750 with a construction budget of $44 million.

Mansfield Correctional Institution. At the site of the Ohio State Reformatory in Richland County. MANCI will house 1,250 maximum/close-security inmates. It is being built for $54 million and is scheduled to open in mid 1989.

Trumbull Correctional Institution. Project was originally scheduled to be built in Cuyahoga County but was moved to the city of Warren in Trumbull County in 1988. TCI is a 650-bed close/minimum-security institution with a construction budget of $39 million.

Central Medical Center. The 240-bed prison medical facility costing $19 million is being built at the site of the Franklin Pre-release Center in Columbus. It is scheduled to open in mid 1990.

Southwest Pre-release Center. Site selection is underway for the 350-bed, $14-million facility that was originally scheduled to be built in Hamilton County.

Institution Programs

Under the TIE concept, the Ohio Plan for Productive Prisons has become the focus of inmate rehabilitation. In 1987, inmate training, prison industries and education programs were linked through a sophisticated program that attempts to make the time spent in prison as productive as possible.

Inmate Education. The accredited Ohio Central School System gives inmates the opportunity to improve academic skills. Many inmates enter the correctional system unable to to read, write or solve even the simplest math problems. Illiteracy is a prime factor in criminal behavior and the department strives to offer learning opportunities to all inmates. The opportunities range from mandatory basic education courses for some inmates to voluntary college programs.

Vocational Training. Several certified vocational programs such as auto mechanics, electronic equipment repair, horticulture, computer programming, barbering and cosmetology provide inmates with worthwhile skills.

Ohio Penal Industries. OPI gives inmates the chance to learn productive work habits and skills through participation in full-scale work programs designed much like a regular business environment. OPI manufactures and markets products for sale to government agencies. Capital raised through sales provides the operating funds for the program. Inmates provide the necessary labor and are paid (an average of $30 per month) for their work. About 2,000 inmates participate in OPI training. Items produced by OPI include license plates, high-quality office furniture, furniture and hardware for new state prisons, inmate garments, custodial supplies and flags.

Inmate Medical Services. The Frazier Health Center at the Orient Correctional Complex provides inmate care for non-emergency and chronic medical cases. Doctors at institution infirmaries are able to handle routine problems or make diagnosis for further treatment. Surgical and emergency care are provided by contracted hospitals.

Social Services. Social workers counsel inmates in a variety of areas including family problems, visiting lists and substance abuse. Counseling is provided on an as-needed basis. Staff assist the Parole Board in compiling background, institutional adjustment and parole plan information.

Religious Services. Each prison has a chapel and clergy on staff. Outside clergy are also invited to hold services and to counsel inmates of a number of religious faiths. Services in institution chapels are well attended.

Inmate Grievance Procedure. The grievance system gives inmates in Ohio correctional institutions a standardized method of presenting complaints concerning conditions of confinement. A grievance may relate to almost any aspect of institutional life. It may concern departmental or local policies, procedures, rules or regulations. I may also pertain to any actions on the part of staff members or inmates affecting the person filing the grievance. Grievances are filed with the inspector of institutional services and they must be specific in the description of the complaint or problem. In 1987, the U.S. Department of Justice certified Ohio's grievance procedure.

Parole and Community Services

The Division of Parole and Community Services is responsible for the community phases of department supervision. This can involve inmates who have been paroled or offenders who were granted probation. The division also contracts with halfway houses and is in charge of inspecting local jails to see if they meet minimum standards.

Adult Parole Authority. Two-hundred and fifty parole and probation officers working in regional offices supervise the activities of about 11,000 offenders. Violation of strict guidelines or further criminal activity can result in the offender being sent to prison.

Ohio Parole Board. Ohio's current laws require judges to sentence convicted felons to prison for either a fixed time (determinate sentence) or for a period of time that includes a minimum and maximum length (indeterminate). All offenders receiving an indeterminate sentence are eligible for an initial parole hearing after meeting specific time requirements determined by the state Legislature. The seven-member parole board (appointed from the civil service ranks by the Chief of the Adult Parole Authority) reviews each case. The board, with the help of staff, decided over 10,000 cases in fiscal year 1987. (see page 12)

Probation Development Services. Judges have the option of sentencing first-time and non-violent offenders to serve their sentences on probation instead of an institution. Probation Development works with local courts in supervising the offenders.

Halfway House Program. Parole and Community Services contracted with 19 halfway houses in 1987 to provide housing and counseling to furloughees, parolees and probationers.

Bureau of Adult Detention. Responsible for developing and implementing minimum operational standards for Ohio's jails. Four jail inspectors work out of regional offices. They routinely inspect village, city and county jails and, if necessary, make recommendations on what must be done to bring the facilities into compliance with state standards. The bureau works closely with local governments to ensure that jails are safe, secure and humane.

A Message from the Director

Richard P. Seiter was appointed director of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction in January 1983 by Governor Richard F. Celeste.

A native of New Bloomington, Ohio in Marion County, Seiter earned bachelor, master and doctorate degrees in public administration and criminal justice at the Ohio State University.

Between 1976 and 1983, he held a number of positions with the Federal Bureau of Prisons including superintendent of the National Academy for Corrections in Boulder, Colorado.

Dear Ohioan,

The mission of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction is to manage institutional and community activities related to convicted adult felons. We do this through two avenues; management of offenders in correctional institutions and through community supervision programs such as parole, probation and community-based residential centers.

Community protection and security are the department's primary responsibilities. Security is maintained by a diligent, well-trained, professional staff and through the use of sophisticated, state-of-the-art technology. These two factors combine to maintain our reputation of having one of the best escape-prevention records in the country.

Our inmate programs are centered on providing safe and humane living conditions. Educational and work-related programs offer all inmates opportunities to improve their chances of making a successful return to society. Daily needs are provided through complete medical care, a balanced diet and recreational opportunities. We are also proud that we operate a quality prison system at a cost effective rate.

It is the department's hope that we can continue to meet the concerns of public safety by carrying out the sentences of Ohio courts and by encouraging and training inmates to become productive, law-abiding citizens. All of the department's employees are committed to these goals and we pledge to do our part to make Ohio a safe and just place to live.

Richard P. Seiter

Richard P. Seiter, Director

Department Administration

The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction was established July 12, 1972 through the 109th General Assembly's passage of Amended House Bill 494. For over 100 years, Ohio's prison system had been administered as a branch of the state's mental institutions. The elevation to a separate, cabinet-level department became necessary because of the the dramatic increase in the number of felons being sentenced to serve time in prison.

Rehablitation and Correction employs about 7,000 persons throughout the state and is responsible for administration and operation of both the institutional and community phases of Ohio's adult correctional system.

The mission of the department is to provide community protection and public safety through the the operation of safe, secure and humane facilities that offer inmates rehabilitative opportunities.

The department is headed by a Director who is appointed by the Governor.

Major functions and responsibilities are shared by three Central Office administrators who report to the director.

The Executive Assistant to the Director is responsible for the executive branch. Program areas include Public Information, Legal Services, the office of Chief Inspector and legislative matters.

The Deputy Director for Administration is responsible for fiscal, personnel and record keeping matters through seven divisions and bureaus: Planning and Information Systems; Business Administration; the bureau of Personnel; Labor Relations, Equal Employment Opportunity; Ohio Penal Industries; and Activation. Program areas include food service, staff training and research.

The Deputy Director for Correctional Programs is responsible for the overall operation of correctional facilities and community supervision programs. The duties are administered through three divisions: Institutions; Institution Programs; and Parole and Community Services. Ohio's 20 adult correctional institutions have separate administrative staffs headed by a superintendent who reports to the Deputy Director. Institution Programs handles inmate classification, security, education, recreation, medical, social work, psychological and religious services. The division of Parole and Community Services supervises the Adult Parole Authority, the Ohio Parole Board, adult probation, community corrections, halfway houses and jail inspections.

Because of the continued growth in the state prison system, plans are being made to divide administrative duties into North and South regions. The change is expected to take place in mid 1988.

Correctional Institutions

At the end of 1987, the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction was operating 17 adult correctional institutions. They are a mix of the old and new facilities . Five of the prisons were opened during the year.

Allen Correctional Institution. Located in Lima adjacent to LCI. The 500-bed, medium-security institution opened in 1987 at a cost of $28 million.

Chillicothe Correctional Institute. Near Chillicothe in Ross County. A former Federal Reformatory which the state of Ohio took over in 1966. The medium-security institution consists of over 50 buildings on a 72- acre compound with a 1,500 acre farm. It's designed to hold approximately 1,500 inmates.

Correctional Reception Center. Central reception area for male inmates. The 900-bed facility opened in 1987 at a cost of $40 million. The Department of Mental Health also staffs a psychological services unit for inmates suffering from emotional problems.

Dayton Correctional Institution. On the west side of Dayton adjacent the city workhouse. The 500-bed, medium-security prison was the first of state's new institutions to open in February 1987.

Hocking Correctional Facility. Located in Nelsonville. HCF is a former state tuberculosis hospital that was converted into a 300-bed, medium/minimum security prison in 1983. Most of the state's elderly male inmates are housed at Hocking.

Lebanon Correctional Institution. Built in 1960 on 40 acres in Warren County. LECI is classified close-security with a design capacity of about 1,200.

Lima Correctional Institution. In Allen County in northwestern Ohio. It was built in the early 1900s as a mental institution for the criminally insane. LCI was converted to a 1,200-bed, medium-security prison in 1984.

London Correctional Institution. Built in 1925 as a prison farm operated by the Ohio Penitentiary. The 3,000-acre farm operation remains in operation at the 1,500-bed medium-security institution in Madison County.

Madison Correctional Institution. Across state Route 56 from LOCI. MACI consists of twin 500-bed compounds. One side is classified minimum security, the other is classified medium. The institution opened in 1987 and cost $35 million to build.

Marion Correctional Institution. Opened in 1956 on 60 acres with an adjacent 925-acre farm in Marion County. Currently MCI is classified close security with a capacity of 1,250.

Ohio Reformatory for Women. The state's only correctional institution for adult female offenders. Located on 260 acres near Marysville in Union County, ORW has a capacity of about 900 and houses all security levels.

Ohio State Reformatory. Opened in 1896 on a 600-acre site in Richland County. OSR is Ohio's oldest state prison currently in operation. It is scheduled to be closed when prisons under construction in northern Ohio are completed.

Orient Correctional Institution. The medium-security prison in Pickaway County was formerly a state institution for the mentally retarded. It replaced the closed Columbus Correctional Facility (Ohio Penitentiary) in 1984. OCI has a design capacity of 1,200.

Pickaway Correctional Institution. PCI was created in 1984 to provide training and job-seeking skills to inmates who were about to be released from incarceration. The six-week-long pre-release program is being transferred to regional centers and PCI will become a medium-security institution. It's located adjacent to OCI and has a design capacity of 1,500.

Ross Correctional Institution. Located across state Route 104 from CCI, Ross is a 1,250 bed medium/minimum security institution built at a cost of $60 million. RCI was the second of the state's new prisons to open in 1987.

Southeastern Correctional Institution. Formerly the Fairfield School for Boys youth facility. It was converted to a medium-security adult correctional institution in 1982. Located near Lancaster in southeastern Ohio, SCI has a design capacity of 1,100.

Southern Ohio Correctional Facility. Opened in Lucasville in Scioto County in 1972. SOCF is classified maximum security and has a design capacity of 1,550.

Prison Construction

In 1982, the Ohio General Assembly authorized the construction of 14 state prisons at a cost of about $550 million. Five of the institutions were opened in 1987 (see previous page). The remaining projects and their estimated completion dates are listed below.

Northeast Pre-release Center. Located near downtown Cleveland. The 350-bed facility is scheduled to be fully operational by mid 1988 at a cost of $14 million.

Franklin Pre-release Center. Located just south of downtown Columbus. Scheduled to open in the fall of 1988, the 250-bed center cost $7 million.

Warren Correctional Institution. Located in Lebanon adjacent LECI. WCI is a 750-bed, close/minimum security institution. It's scheduled to open in the fall of 1988 at a cost of $44 million.

Grafton Correctional Institution. In Lorain County at the site of the Grafton Honor Camp. GCI is scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1988. The 500-bed, medium-security institution cost $30 million.

Lorain Correctional Institution. Also on the site of the Grafton Honor Camp. LORCI is scheduled to open in early 1989. Classified close security, it has a capacity of 750 with a construction budget of $44 million.

Mansfield Correctional Institution. At the site of the Ohio State Reformatory in Richland County. MANCI will house 1,250 maximum/close-security inmates. It is being built for $54 million and is scheduled to open in mid 1989.

Trumbull Correctional Institution. Project was originally scheduled to be built in Cuyahoga County but was moved to the city of Warren in Trumbull County in 1988. TCI is a 650-bed close/minimum-security institution with a construction budget of $39 million.

Central Medical Center. The 240-bed prison medical facility costing $19 million is being built at the site of the Franklin Pre-release Center in Columbus. It is scheduled to open in mid 1990.

Southwest Pre-release Center. Site selection is underway for the 350-bed, $14-million facility that was originally scheduled to be built in Hamilton County.

Institution Programs

Under the TIE concept, the Ohio Plan for Productive Prisons has become the focus of inmate rehabilitation. In 1987, inmate training, prison industries and education programs were linked through a sophisticated program that attempts to make the time spent in prison as productive as possible.

Inmate Education. The accredited Ohio Central School System gives inmates the opportunity to improve academic skills. Many inmates enter the correctional system unable to to read, write or solve even the simplest math problems. Illiteracy is a prime factor in criminal behavior and the department strives to offer learning opportunities to all inmates. The opportunities range from mandatory basic education courses for some inmates to voluntary college programs.

Vocationai Training. Several certified vocational programs such as auto mechanics, electronic equipment repair, horticulture, computer programming, barbering and cosmetology provide inmates with worthwhile skills.

Ohio Penal Industries. OPI gives inmates the chance to learn productive work habits and skills through participation in full-scale work programs designed much like a regular business environment. OPI manufactures and markets products for sale to government agencies. Capital raised through sales provides the operating funds for the program. Inmates provide the necessary labor and are paid (an average of $30 per month) for their work. About 2,000 inmates participate in OPI training. Items produced by OPI include license plates, high-quality office furniture, furniture and hardware for new state prisons, inmate garments, custodial supplies and flags.

Inmate Medical Services. The Frazier Health Center at the Orient Correctional Complex provides inmate care for non-emergency and chronic medical cases. Doctors at institution infirmaries are able to handle routine problems or make diagnosis for further treatment. Surgical and emergency care are provided by contracted hospitals.

Social Services. Social workers counsel inmates in a variety of areas including family problems, visiting lists and substance abuse. Counseling is provided on an as-needed basis. Staff assist the Parole Board in compiling background, institutional adjustment and parole plan information.

Religious Services. Each prison has a chapel and clergy on staff. Outside clergy are also invited to hold services and to counsel inmates of a number of religious faiths. Services in institution chapels are well attended.

Inmate Grievance Procedure. The grievance system gives inmates in Ohio correctional institutions a standardized method of presenting complaints concerning conditions of confinement. A grievance may relate to almost any aspect of institutional life. It may concern departmental or local policies, procedures, rules or regulations. I may also pertain to any actions on the part of staff members or inmates affecting the person filing the grievance. Grievances are filed with the inspector of institutional services and they must be specific in the description of the complaint or problem. In 1987, the U.S. Department of Justice certified Ohio's grievance procedure.

Parole and Community Services

The Division of Parole and Community Services is responsible for the community phases of department supervision. This can involve inmates who have been paroled or offenders who were granted probation. The division also contracts with halfway houses and is in charge of inspecting local jails to see if they meet minimum standards.

Adult Parole Authority. Two-hundred and fifty parole and probation officers working in regional offices supervise the activities of about 11,000 offenders. Violation of strict guidelines or further criminal activity can result in the offender being sent to prison.

Ohio Parole Board. Ohio's current laws require judges to sentence convicted felons to prison for either a fixed time (determinate sentence) or for a period of time that includes a minimum and maximum length (indeterminate). All offenders receiving an indeterminate sentence are eligible for an initial parole hearing after meeting specific time requirements determined by the state Legislature. The seven-member parole board (appointed from the civil service ranks by the Chief of the Adult Parole Authority) reviews each case. The board, with the help of staff, decided over 10,000 cases in fiscal year 1987. (see page 12)

Probation Development Services. Judges have the option of sentencing first-time and non-violent offenders to serve their sentences on probation instead of an institution. Probation Development works with local courts in supervising the offenders.

Halfway House Program. Parole and Community Services contracted with 19 halfway houses in 1987 to provide housing and counseling to furloughees, parolees and probationers.

Bureau of Adult Detention. Responsible for developing and implementing minimum operational standards for Ohio's jails. Four jail inspectors work out of regional offices. They routinely inspect village, city and county jails and, if necessary, make recommendations on what must be done to bring the facilities into compliance with state standards. The bureau works closely with local governments to ensure that jails are safe, secure and humane.
